Vacation in Cherokee

The Author visited Ovala Boundary, a town in Cherokee with enchanting beauty. The brief history of Cherokee was represented through tribal crafts and cultural tableaux. They went to a gift shop displayed with traditional crafts. They met a person, fluent in English and he invited them for lunch. He told them he has had work during on peak season, while he earned through wood cutting during off peak season. The tribe even earned handsome amount of money during off peak season by inviting enormous number of people in the specified hall. Finally author visited museum in town and every article in museum was depicting evolution of Cherokee over years. Author had a great time in Cherokee and he look forward to many such trips.
