

1) Global Warming:

Global warming is a disastrous issue that mankind is dealing with these days. It is affecting the environment which eventually impacts the human health. As global average temperature warms, weather patterns are changing. An immediate result of global warming is the extreme weather. Mankind is facing many diseases out of high temperature leading to increased rate of deaths. Extreme temperature is expected to cause more deaths from malnutrition, malaria, diarrhea and heat stress. In this way, global warming is affecting the health of mankind.

2) Poverty:

Poverty leads to increase in crime rate. When a man become unable to fulfil his own basic needs like food, clothing and shelter, he becomes stressed and physically deprived. There is a higher rate of mental illness among the poor than the rich. Poor people having higher level of stress because of lack of resources; can be driven towards the crimes like theft, robbery or other violent acts. Crime offers a way through which poor people can fulfill their basic needs that they can't attain through legal means. So, the increase in poverty is a booster for crime rate.

3) Globalization:

Globalization is a source through which fast development in any area is possible. Globalization is a powerful source of poverty reduction on the greater level and also shows some dimensions of development. Globalization effects the development through the global financial flows, different types of financial investments, technological progress, international regulation and cooperation among the states around the globe. Globalization created the new alliances and global networks through spreading the products, technology, information, and jobs across the national and cultural borders. As with major technological advances, globalization benefits the society as a whole. Therefore, globalization is playing a huge role in development around the globe.

4) Islamophobia:

Muslims would face different forms of discrimination because of Islamophobia. Where Islamophobia describes the irrational hostility, fear, or hatred of Islam, Muslims, and Islamic culture, it allows the other people to discriminate against these groups or individuals. Muslims face discrimination in some non-Muslim countries in several ways like physical or verbal attacks on those who manifest their religious identity. Some Muslims face the verbal or online threats of violence and abuse. Also some policies or legislation indirectly target the Muslims and restrict their freedom of religion like banning the hijab. Muslims also face discrimination in education, employment, housing or access to goods and services. Therefore, Islamophobia is one of the major reasons that leads to the discrimination when a Muslim gets into a different culture or society.
