

State of Crises

Since ~~the~~ Pakistan came into being, there have been several crises. These crises include military takeover, the separation of east Pakistan, and the hanging of a political leader.

Nowadays, we also have several crises, such as political crises. We have a completely polarised political setup.

Due to this, all the big issues remain unresolved.

On the other hand, we have economic crises. High inflation broke all the previous records. The price of food items broke all the previous records for inflation over the last month.

The security situation in the country is vulnerable. The militant group that targeting the security personnel is one of the big crises in Khyber-Pakhtunkhwa. Due to these multiple crises, the young generation of Pakistanis is leaving the country, because they feel there is no future for us.

To overcome these multiple crises, our political leadership as well as all the stakeholders should play active roles. Our political leadership should make effective policies and bring reforms to all sectors.
