(Q No 1)

Happiness is such a

(Q No 1)

Every person on the Earth <sup>wants to</sup> remains to be happy. It is a feeling which everyone wants in his life but it cannot be achieved through material wealth meaning having enough to live comfortably, like the Happy Index Report 2012 reflects. This is a strong evidence that material wealth does not guarantee happiness.

(Q No 2)

Voluntary simplicity means people should must know the difference between needs and desires. When ~~one~~ a person uses this philosophy, it becomes a movement as everyone uses his/her ~~intellect~~, <sup>what</sup> that he/she needs and desires.

(Q No 3)

In growing consumerism, everyone wants more and more. Their quest to acquire more and more things depletes the useful resources and leaves nothing for next generations. In this way, consumerism is a threat to the resources for future generations.

(Q No 4)

The challenges to to what? are: ~~that~~ of people unwillingness to differentiate between needs and desires, cultural background and climate.

Its When people will distinguish and maintain a balance between them, it will save the resources and reduce reducing the environmental degradation.
