

Title: Amateur and Mature Readers

Humans, whether unconsciously or not, get affected by the work of an author. Whatever we consume our body gets affected to it and the same ~~effect~~ occurs when we read something. The level of affectness depends upon our history of education. A young mind is more likely to be carried by the work of a poet. This does not differentiate between a mature and a young mind, but it is the poet who affects the undiscovered personality of an individual by his own strong personality. The same happens to those who don't read much. However, the more an individual reads, the more he differentiates between author and becomes a strong critic. A mind that has read several books is more valuable as it ceases to be dominated by a powerful personality and through all different views of life, we tend to choose those similar to our personality.
