Title = Role of educators in social morality

The writer emphasises on the use and training of human intelligence in the service of love, kindness and empathy. In this way intelligence be made source of social morality and survival. To produce morally intelligent people is a challenge to educators. In the past, social morality was left to religious scholars but they failed to fulfill their responsibilities. Powerful people have no time to deal with the problem of social morality, Machiavellianism remains guiding principles of their decisions. All people have hope that educational institution can produce morally sensitive people. They must train human in the way to assure love, kindness and empathy which is required.
