

Title:

Education, Freedom, Authority and Society.

In the domain of education there are three approaches in debate to be used. Some suggest fully freedom no matter how they behave. Some suggest fully authoritative technique to be used and lastly other proposed freedom, but children should behave well. Third method is inspired by the Rousseau's theory of liberty, and follower of this stance ignores the due importance of knowledge. Cooperation is the essential part of society which seems impossible without education. Extensive amount of people lives together in small area through scientific techniques. Compassion, self-control, and intelligence are the required qualities of a healthy Community, all these cannot be gained solely through freedom. Education should be considered more important than minimal chance of development. It's the core of mental and moral development in individuals.

Precis words = 131

original paragraph = 293