

Both parents should assume equal responsibility in raising a child

Outline

1- Introduction: Thesis statement: - In raising a child, both parents should assume equal responsibility. A child's proper mental development, education, morality etc are developed by both parents. Therefore, role of both parents is equal necessary in raising a child.

2- Parents' responsibility in raising a child

3- Both parents should assume equal responsibility in raising a child

a) Parents' equal role develops mental capacity of a child

b) Coordination of parents in education of a child gives brilliant results

c) Parents are drivers of morality of a child

d) Role of both parents makes a child as a successful social man in his life

e) Parents responsibility makes a child a good man

4- Both parents should not assume equal responsibility in raising a child

a) Role of one parent can develop mental capacity of a child

- b) Either father's or mother's coordination in education of a child makes brilliant results
- c) Supervision of one parent can also lead to moral character of a child
- d) Role of father is enough to make a child a successful social man
- e) Role of both parents is not necessary to make a child a good man

5- Both parents should fulfil their equal responsibility in raising a child

- a) Role of both parents in developing mental capacity is very effective
- b) Both parents' coordination in education make a child to make continuous brilliant results
- c) Equal responsibility of both parents in moral development is mandatory
- d) Mother, as well as, father are types of a child's social progress
- e) Role of both parents affect well-being of a child

6- Conclusion