Title: Ancient Greek Mysteries: Exploring Oracles

The Greeks believed that divine power controlled their fate and the knowledge to understand the wishes of Gods guided their behaviour. The practice of giving oracles was interpreted by soothsayers, such as signs like thunder, lightning, flight pattern of birds, entails of animals and other natural phenomena. They also interpreted dreams and palmistry. However, sometimes, Gods directly communicate through intermediates, often prophet and prophetesses, in a divine state of ecstasy. These practices formed the foundation on which ancient Greeks oracles operated. And, each oracle was associated with a specific work, place and a certain God.
