

Date: _____

Day: _____

The climate change is neglected due to the lack of political will. This means political leadership has failed to address the issue of climate crisis. This reluctance to act on climate change is evident in the limited policies and funding directed toward environmental protection. For instance, according to IPCC (Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change) says that the biggest hurdle in addressing the issue of climate crisis is political will. In conclusion, the neglect of climate crisis is displayed by the lack of political will.