

Political Instability in Pakistan

Political Instability in Pakistan is a complex issue that requires a lot of attention and efforts to resolve. For example, the instability of government, inefficiency of political parties and a weak political culture creates a scenario for a politically unstable state. Likewise, political instability has become a serious problem in Pakistan. It is the major cause of the government and the country's downfall. The current political landscape is ruined by multiple political parties fighting for power. The political tug of war is pushing the country towards economic disaster, with poverty, unemployment, crime rates and the devaluation of rupee all increasing. Moreover, religious and ethnic parties added fuel to the fire and bring more disasters in an already fragile environment. These religious sects split the society and exploit their sentiments for their profits. ~~Furthermore,~~ furthermore, it has also become a tough job for the government to formulate domestic and foreign policies, as it ~~is~~ deemed the support of all massive within a party. It has been claimed that unless there is collective efforts from all individuals within a party, a stabilize ^{political} system cannot be achieved otherwise. In a nutshell, political parties should set aside their personal interests, differences, and work for the betterment of the country. Only then we can hope to address the problem facing our nation.
