The author wanted to go to a place where there were no holiday crowds so when his friend, John, suggested a trip to Cherokee, he happily agreed. They visited Qualla Boundary that was surrounded by mountains. The Oconaluftee Indian village portrayed tribal crafts, lifestyles, and music to create an image signify the Cherokee's past. With the natives' help, they went to souvenir shops where they found beautiful souvenirs and met George. He invited them for lunch. During conversation with George, they found out that Cherokees do not only depend on trade but other ways too such as 'Bingo weekend'. Finally, they visited museum where arts and symbols of Cherokee cosmology were displayed.
