Teacher's Interaction with Children

According to the author, modern educational theorists pay more attention to non-interference with children than friendship with them. Children will obey ~~us~~, if we show <sup>more</sup> affection to them. However, keeping affection with motives of political or national outcomes from ~~children~~ <sup>them</sup> is of <sup>no use</sup> ~~love~~. Only non-conditional ~~liking~~ <sup>of</sup> children could result in pleasure. So, teachers <sup>simplify this sentence</sup> having such a quality will have relation with children having no psychological damage. Thus, it is impossible for every teacher to show that affection towards children. Moreover, young are fatigued from following strict discipline rules resulting in visitation. Therefore, teachers keep a controlled liking for children. This results in keeping a balanced approach of liking and discipline for children.
