Significance of the deal:
This deal has significant implications for Middle East, and Pakistan, which is Iran's Immediate neighbour and a close strategic ally of saudi Arabia, is poised to benefit from the

it was Beijing that ultimately managed to broker this geopolitical. Pakistan has been trying to resolve the regional rift since its first occurred, and has continued its mediation efforts over the years. By adopting a balanced approach, Islamabad has tried to maintain equilibrium in its dealings with both countries. The Pakistan Foreign office called the normalization as "an important diplomatic break through" made possible by "China's visionary leadership?" According to Michael Kugelman, South Asia director at The Wilson Centre in Washington, Pakistan will be one of the biggest beneficiaries if the deal is successful. He says: Few countries are more vulnerable to Iran-Saudi Arabia rivalry than Pakistan. China's Role in Brokering the Peaceful deal: China's involvement in the region is driven by its growing economy's need for energy from the Middle East, and its successful avoidance of regional rivalries and conflicts. China involvement in brokering the deal reflects its peaceful foreign policy principles and the desire to rise together, as opposed t s the negative portrayal of its Belt and Road Initiative as
