

2009

Title: Art: The Reflection of Reality

Philosophers are of the view that art instigates one's emotions. Plato is of the view that art nurtures one's emotions and ~~on~~ <sup>contrarily,</sup> the other hand Tolstoi believed that art corrupts them. Tolstoi ignores an important aspect of art that it is a mean ~~through which~~ <sup>of</sup> which one can explore different states of human nature. According to Wordsworth's ~~definition,~~ art is the recollection of emotions in peace. This definition denotes art as an attribute of ~~past~~ <sup>present</sup> but actually it belongs to present. Art is the reflection of reality. It does not corrupts one's emotion rather helps one to understand their true nature. All artists agree with Shakespeare's point that art is a mean to understand the reality.

Total words: 328

Summarized: 115

main idea is picked but the is use to too many extra words be precise and to the point
be careful about basic grammar need improvement 7/20
over all average precise