

Behind every fortune, there is a crime.

Outline

1- Introduction

Thesis statement: Traditionally, behind every fortune, there is a crime. Despite specific arguments, there are some critiques who oppose it. However, their given arguments do not agree to the logic. Hence, there is always a crime behind every fortune.

2- Relationship between one's fortune and crime: An overview

3- Behind every fortune, there is a crime (Thesis)

- a) Abuse of power leads to one's status bright
- b) Vulnerability to the peer provokes fortune due to theft and robbery
- c) The rich also direct to their fortune due to illegal acts
- d) Relations are also revolve in a cycle of crimes
- e) Crimes as learning phenomenon shapes fortune of society

4- There is not a crime behind every fortune (Antithesis)

- a) People are already born with their bright fortune
- b) Theft and robbery are born-criminal acts
- c) The rich are already born-fortune people, not by a crime
- d) Beyond a crime, relations are natural fortune
- e) Crimes can be controlled by formal and informal social actions

5- Behind every fortune, there is still a crime (Synthesis)

- a) Except a few, the most of people led to fortune by criminal performances
- b) The most of people are compelled to criminal act in order to shape their fortune
- c) Indulgence in corruption put oxygen to their fortune
- d) Harassment, threats, rape are crimes leading to a fortune
- e) Social disorganization re-births crime in framing societal fortune

6- Conclusion