Leisure : A Blessing in Disguise

The bad in the world is due to people not making the right decisions at the right time. Satan is still busy engaging in harmful actions, wasting little time.

The world is in chaos not because of sluggishness but due to lack of kindness and thoughtful decision making.

The power in the world has been deprived to his true direction. The world could have been in a much better state if the leaders of 1914 had chosen not to take any action instead of believing in the importance of doing something. Furthermore, the world have been at peace if our leaders had chosen to go to hillside instead of engaging in the versailles Conference with their misguided ideas.

Europe would still be in peace if the idea of sluggishness was embraced.

The religious conferences still waste people's time by discussing baseless issues instead of focusing on world problem. It would be better for them to take some rest and prioritize mental health.

John Lock's Idea of Ideal State John's state: Protecting Property and Ensuring Consent

According to John Lock, Society and laws are meant to protect the property. Locke believed that the authority of society can also be maintained through mutually agreed upon laws. These laws must be protected by impartial judges, ensuring that even the king cannot disregard them. Locke also acknowledged the challenges faced by commercial classes and advocated for their rights to property. In his view, a king can govern all aspects of soldier's life except for their property. Additionally, John argued that an individual's work is also their property. As a result, he asserted that no taxes can be imposed on people without their consent.
