

3 - Factors hindering human development that affects economic sustainability :

a- Nations with higher human development have caused more economic instability

Nations with higher human development have caused more economic instability.

Nations across the world have caused economic instability of the developing nations. Developed states, such as, USA, China, Russia, and etc, have caused more economic instability.

The World Wars, I and II, current Ukraine crisis, Middle East war and the current US and China trade war are its examples. These mentioned conflicts directly impact the international currency, such as USD, and fuel prices, which impact the developing states economy. Therefore, nations with higher human development have caused and have been causing more economic instability of the developing nations.
