

Is Pakistan ready for 5th generation warfare?

Outline

1- Introduction

Thesis statement: Pakistan, unfortunately, is not ready for fifth generation warfare. But, another school of thought believes otherwise; however, the given evidences are not relevant. Therefore, it is beyond any doubt that Pakistan is still not ready for fifth generation warfare.

2- An overview of contemporary age of fifth generation warfare

3- Pakistan is not ready for fifth generation warfare (Thesis)

- a) Ideological division and separatism movement has weakened Pakistan
- b) Misinterpretation of religion to curb state religion is growing
- c) Misinformation and exploitation of media in promoting fake reports
- d) Political instability and institutional breakdown are growing dilemma
- e) Vulnerability to cyber security has threatened Pakistan

4. Pakistan is ready for fifth generation warfare (Anti-thesis)

- a) Pakistan's effort to counter separatist movement is successful
- b) National Action Plan (NAP) has contained religious extremism
- c) Pakistan has exposed Indian propaganda at the international forum
- d) Positive role of media has filled gap between institutions and public
- e) Cyber security policy of 2021 is an iron tool to reduce cyber attacks

5. Pakistan is still not ready for the fifth generation warfare (Synthesis)

- a) Counter-terrorism operation is weak and slow
- b) Religious extremists is preculing as blasphemy accusation
- c) India's attempt to make Pakistan financially isolated is ongoing
- d) The Chief Justice power on 'Vote of No-confidence' added oxygen to political instability
- e) Cyber attacks have threatened security concern

6. Conclusion