

Pakistan's Foreign Policy and Globalization

The dynamics of international relations due to globalization and technology have changed the world. These changes have brought a number of challenges and opportunities for Pakistan. The country needs a review of its foreign policy in order to cope with challenges and opportunities. The problems that the country is confronting are hybrid warfare, economic disparities, social disintegration and deteriorating of the domestic industries. The above mentioned dilemmas at the foreign policy level must be dealt with iron hand. However, Pakistan has great opportunities in order to bolster its dynamics of foreign policy. The country strongly needed to integrate itself with region countries through energy and infrastructure projects. Moreover, the differences with rivals should be resolved with effective diplomacy. The forum of regional organizations will be helpful in this regard. Last but not the least, initiating labour export policies will be a surplus for improving economic outlook of Pakistan. Without a robust foreign policy, it is almost difficult for the country to survive in the contemporary globalized world.
