

Promoting girls' education in Pakistan is a key step towards empowering women and achieving sustainable development.

Outline

1- Introduction

Thesis statement: Undoubtedly, girls' education is a key tool of women empowerment, which contributes to sustainable development in Pakistan. Several examples, including financial independency, gender parity, and sustainable society are few among other. However, some proactive strategies will promote girls' education in Pakistan for women empowerment and sustainable development.

2- A glance at girls' education in Pakistan

3- Manifestation of Pakistan's progress in promoting girls' education

a) Establishment of women educational system in remote areas

b) Parity in acquisition of education in every department

c) The Benazir Income Support Programme (BISP) girls' stipend for the poor girls

d) Initiation of Women's exclusive transport to access higher education

START FORM HERE

- e) Specific quota for women in the competitive examination
- f) Establishment of separate women universities throughout the country

4- Implications of girls' education on women empowerment and sustainable development in Pakistan

- a) A step towards financial independency of women
- b) Women participation in labour market contributes to economic growth
- c) Transition from gender disparity towards gender parity
- d) Secular society with unity, harmony, and co-operation
- e) A tool of prosperity because of educated nation
- f) Inclusive decision making in all spheres of life
- g) Responsible youth for welfare of the country
- h) Sustainability of democratic norms leading to political stability

5- Methodologies to promote girls' education for women empowerment and sustainable development in Pakistan

- a) Increase the BISP programme to admit girls in remote areas
- b) Improve the status of public schools in the country
- c) Launch scholarship programmes to facilitate girls' education

Establishment of women educational system in remote areas

Undoubtedly, Pakistan is ready to promote girls' education which can be seen in the establishment of women educational system in remote areas. Pakistan has established several schools for women education, particularly in terms of rural education. This approach can be seen in recent appointment of teachers in all remote areas in Sindh Province. "Approximately 60,000 teachers were appointed on pure merit to promote girls' education, in remote and urban cities of Sindh" (PIBS Report, 2022). This example serves as a clear demonstration that establishment of women educational system in remote areas is essence of girls' education in Pakistan.

Parity in acquisition of education in every department Further, parity in acquisition of education in every department is a main focus of Pakistan to promote girls' education. Girls like boys have equal right to education, which they can achieve in every field. The constitution of Pakistan has also guarded right to education in order to promote girls'.

START FORM HERE

education. As per the constitution "Girls and boys of age 5 to 18 have right to free and compulsory education." (Article 25A of the constitution of 1973). This indicates parity in acquisition of education as a chief purpose of Pakistan to promote girls' education.

