The city of Lahore is an ancient center of not only politics but also culture. The Mughal's culture witnessed its glory in this city. It was also the hub of Sikh culture. It inherited the culture of arts and literature, too. It was the home of Sufis as well. Hazrat Ali Hujwiri, famously known as Dara Ganj Bakhsh, the author of Kashf al-Maljub, also rests here. In the British raj, the fashion of Lahore was followed all over India. Even after the inception of Pakistan, this city has not lost its importance.

Pakistan is committed to secure peace in Afghanistan because peace in Afghanistan is highly important for Pakistan. From historical perspective, Pakistan and Afghanistan, as neighbour Islamic brothers, are glued with historical, cultural and linguistic bonds. Their relations are inherent; both countries depend on each other and neither can live without the other. From the first day, Pakistan has emphasised for political solution of Afghanistan issue. China also advocates this view. In this regard, China has said that Afghan problem can only be solved through peace dialogues, involving the Afghan leadership. As part of strategic partnership, Pakistan and China will play their role to resolve Afghan issue through negotiations.
