

Behind every fortune, there is a crime.

Outline

1- Introduction

Thesis statement: ~~Traditionally, behind every fortune, there is a crime.~~ ^{Grammatically incorrect} Despite specific arguments, there are some critiques who oppose it. However, their given arguments do not agree to the logic. Hence, there is always a crime behind every fortune.

2- Relationship between one's fortune and crime: An overview

3- Behind every fortune, there is a crime (Thesis)

- a) Abuse of power leads to one's ^{Higher} bright
- b) Vulnerability to the peer provokes fortune due to theft and robbery
- c) The rich also direct to their fortune due to illegal acts
- d) Relations are also revolving in a cycle of crimes
- e) Crimes as learning phenomenon shapes fortune of society

4- There is not a crime behind every fortune (Antithesis)

- People are ~~already~~ born with their bright fortune
- Theft and robbery are born-criminal acts
- The rich are ~~already~~ born-fortune people, not by a crime
- ~~Beyond a crime, relations are natural fortune~~
- Crimes can be controlled by formal and informal social actions

5- Behind every fortune, there is still a crime (Synthesis)

- Except a few, ~~the~~ most of people led to fortune by criminal performances
- The most of ~~peas~~ are compelled to criminal act in order to shape their fortune
- Indulgence in corruption ~~but~~ oxygen to their fortune
- Harassment, threats, rape are crimes leading to a fortune
- Social disorganization re-births crime in ~~forming~~ societal fortune

6- Conclusion

Understanding of the topic is faulty
The topic means that whether every fortune (spiritual, economic, social or political) is the outcome of crime?