Life without direction and purpose brings nothing but evil. Wastage of time is not even acceptable in devil's world. Hence, there is a need to work on laziness by not wasting a single bit of time. There is also imperative to bring out motivated thoughts and direct them into productive actions. World war I was a perfect example of a misdirected act, if it was not happened, world would have been doing better.
The principles of life must be followed by not wasting time. Even if state leaders take a break from their busy routine and spend some hours of mindfulness and peace, they could gain productivity. Another example is religious leaders who often negatively point out others and gain nothing. Thus, time is precious and needs to be spent wisely.
