

Title: The Art in Ancient Greece

The ancient Greeks were afraid of natural beauty because it consists of wild animals, harsh weathers, and difficulties for humans at times of natural disasters. That's why one couldn't find the representation of natural beauty in their art and literature. Greeks ~~and~~ were also used to think that the abundance of mountains and forests made agriculture difficult for them. This also made them dislike the nature. Even their poets and authors didn't have any kind of sense of natural beauty in their poetry and writings ~~in~~ ⁱⁿ the era of Greek republics, when Greek republics were over, all kind of authors came out and described the beauty of nature in their respective niches, i.e. poetry, novels, lyrics etc.
