

Precis - CSS 2000

Title: Middle Class: An Agent of Change

Precis:-

Middle Class of 9th Century was not considered as the part of the society. People could only belong to the society if they were borned there, or had family connection there. They were not allowed to go to the places and towns specified for Army and Navy. The middle class people understood their worth, gave respect to themselves, made a society for themselves where they could attain due respect and honor. Middle class had passed through many changes. It was already aware of its importance, then became more concerned about worst condition of Pooors, and its social norms. It was respectable due to its ideal good behaviour, but there were some certain conventions also that made it irrespectable in the whole world.

(122 words)

(Total words: 340)