

"The Pros and Cons of Globalization"

I. Introduction

Thesis Statement:

The transition of the world ^{order} is because of globalization which is having repercussions. However, the balance can be maintained by taking certain steps.

2. Overview of Globalization

3. Pros of Globalization

- a) Technological ~~revolution~~
- b) Unit of State becoming stronger
- c) Political uplift due to Globalization
- d) Soaring economy imparted by globalization
- e) Social cohesion resulted by globalization
- f) Increase job opportunities because of globalization
- g) Information escalation imparted by globalization

4. Cons of Globalization

- a) Clash of global power resulted by globalization
- b) Economic disparity emergence due to globalization
- c) Hybrid warfare blessing of globalization
- d) Globalization impacted culture

c.) Misuse of technology imparted by globalization

5. Conclusion

According to Jany Pascal "Globalization is incredibly efficient as well as unjust at the same time". From the above context, it is clear that globalization is having good and bad effects. The Pros of globalization have certainly influenced the world as by having a stronger unit, political uplift, soaring economy, and many others are blessing of globalization. In contrast the Cons^{of globalization} are also alarming as the power race of superpower is going on because of globalization, economic disparity, hybrid warfare, and other related cons of globalization. The transition of world order is because of globalization which is having repercussions. However, a balance can be maintained by taking certain steps.

Globalization is defined as "transition of primitive world to the modern world because of the new invention and technology".

Globalization merely started from the industrial revolution in 1860.

It first impacted United States of America, Europe, and later on, all of the globe. Globalization has its own pros and cons. While, on the other end having pros. The cycle of good and bad of globalization is roaming around the globe. In a nutshell, globalization is a blessing and curse.