- 1) Men has become more and more (extraordinary) dependent on machines. He is now incapable of controlling the machines instead machine have started controlling men. Men has now been looking for machine to do every task.
- 2) The leisure and energy given to us by machines has been a curse because we are unable to recognize our real potential. We have been spending all time in making new machines rather than enjoying our lives and doing what we like.
- 3) Civilization is interacting with people, doing what you like, feeling free and out of all conflict. It means living a life according to one's own desires, without any fear.
- 4) "Making more beautiful things", mean exploring and understanding the world in a better way. I would like to know more about myself and spend more time with my parents because this would be the most beautiful thing and I'll make it possible by utilizing the free time provided by machines.

5) I would prefer increasing civilization in the world to eradicate poverty. I would try to increase people-to-people communication and enhance trade relations and for that investing time in such productive tasks would be my priority.

Precis

- Titles:
- i) Laziness is a blessing.
 - ii) Harms caused by over-active people
 - iii) Laziness is better than misdirected vigour

All the issues in the world are because of the energetic people who don't know how to use their vigour properly. I think active people are like devil who never sits idle and keeps on creating chaos in the world. If our ancestors had wanted to take some rest and chill, instead of marching to war, we wouldn't have had such mistakes in our history. And our affairs would have been in a less challenging situation. Even today, it will be beneficial for us if our politicians decide to do nothing. Some conservative people still keep on imposing their thoughts on others. It would be great if they lie on their back and restore their mental health rather than criticizing others.
