

University Courses Need Pragmatic Approach

A pragmatic course is necessary for universities. A course that ends up ensuring greater minds and better society, but it only produces ordinary minds. It produces intellectuality and civic sense in society. University training capacitate man to think wisely and express opinion fluently. It indicates man the right path and warns about the bad things. However, it does not ^{have} the potential to produce legendary people. It cannot guarantee great authors, educationists, revolutionists and conquerors. Furthermore, it does not inculcate in man the ability to critically evaluate. Therefore, such course should be adopted by university that guarantees great minds and better society.