

Outline: Why do Aspirants fail In CSS

Subheading: Poor management of time

There are many reasons of failure in CSS in which one is the poor management of time. Such as, aspirants don't pay proper attention to maintain his study hours because they do not know the importance of time management. This happens to those students who get confused about the length of syllabus due to lack of guidance. For example, if a student doesn't has the ability to divide his time properly among his activities and studies then how he can cover his syllabus in time. Therefore, he fails. Consequently, we can say that inappropriate time division leads to failure.