English Preci and Composition mock Practice

Preci Title:

Preci:

Every nation has a tendency to think itself as superior and other as inferior. Several Eastern countries were in the same delusions until they got a reality-check by the western exploitation over past 300 years. Yet, they believe that although materially inferior, they are morally and spiritually superior to the west and that material growth is superficial. Author admits the latter notion but is surprised by how material inferiority is illogically linked to spiritual superiority - which is nothing more than a mere "escape from degradation."

Reading Comprehension

When and how did the reign of terror happened?

During the French revolution, French people were divided. This divide, under revolutionary alterations, turned into civil wars, and that eventually led to reign of terror. In this way, revolution without the assurance of internal unity led to the reign of terror.

In what ways, American revolution was easier than French revolution?

American revolution was easier than French revolution in many ways. Firstly, ^{American} French did not had to face the retaliation from neighbourhood because of their geographical isolation. Secondly, they did not have ~~not~~ the emotional connection with the king unlike France whose public used to love king. Thirdly, Americans were internally united while France faced internal divisions. Lastly, American only had to change the government while French had to change entire ideology. In these way, American revolution was easier than French revolution.

(3) Greatest impact on French inability? why?

The internal divide among French people was the greatest reason for the failure of French revolution. It is because it worsened the situation by imposing multiple threats to revolution - of the internal chaos, civil wars, and threat of opposition to revolution. Moreover, it also necessitated the revolution leaders to collect people under umbrella of revolution which diverted their attention from actually doing the revolution. In this way internal divide contributed to the failure of French revolution.

(4) Greatest impact on American success? why?

The unity among the Americans was a huge reason behind success of American revolution. It collected all the people of America under one flag. They all were united to make their own government by expelling British autocrats. The harmony among their goals united them to carry out the American revolution. Hence internal unity was proved a huge plus-point for American revolution.

5) Divine cult of Reason implies?

French revolution was a result of the era of enlightenment, where political theories ~~are~~ took the place of divine right theories. In such situation in France, French revolutionaries had to unite all the people on the agreement to carry-out the revolution. Well, OK! The material wasn't exactly challenging but you got the idea. That exercise demonstrates the capabilities; that computers have the ability to match one thing with another - in this case, to match words with the pictures - and the ability to present items in a random order. Actually, the last point is a complete lie. Computers, being entirely mechanical, are incapable of doing anything random. However, they are conjuring up numbers or sequences by methods so obscure and convoluted that for all practical purposes, they are random.
