“A leader is one who knows the way, goes the way, and shows the way,” John Maxwell. This means that a leader is the one who has a major responsibility to not only lead his nation to the way of success but also has a foresight to show the way to a better future. A nation’s destiny lays in the hands of the one who leads them—a leader. That is to say, a leader can impact positively if he has a clear vision and direction. This can be achieved by promoting economic growth and economic stability of the country, and improving international relations. A leader can easily influence the fortune if he prioritizes the basic needs of the nation such as education, healthcare and the environment. On the other hand, incompetent leadership can lead a country to towards the path of destruction as well. Practising nepotism, ignoring basic rights of humans and mismanaging economy can be disastrous for the country. Moreover, setting wrong priorities, failing to Address contemporary issues and ignoring global politics can wreak havoc upon the state. However, effective leadership can be ensured by establishing strong institutions, promoting transparency and accountability in the country, and most importantly public participation in politics. A country’s growth and shortfalls rely heavily on its leader. Thus, a leader is the one who has the power to make or break the destiny of his country or nation.
