University Courses Need Pragmatic Approach

A pragmatic course is necessary for universities, ^a a course that ends up ensuring greater minds and better society. However, it only produces ordinary minds. It produces intellectuality and civic sense in society. University training capacitates man to think wisely and express opinion freely. It indicates man the right path and warns about the bad things. However, it does not ^{have} the potential to produce legendary people. It cannot guarantee (great authors, educationists, ^{these are examples.} conquerors). Furthermore, it does not inculcate in man the ability to critically evaluate. Therefore, such course should be adopted by university that guarantees great minds and better society.

Do not include examples. Just give their gist.

Idea and structure generally ok.
