The suitable title for the given passage is:

Changing Perceptions of War in Civilizations

After analyzing the reasons, the writer concluded that wars are responsible for the destruction of civilizations. The consequences of wars are catastrophic. However, the earlier nations preferred wars as they considered that the ^{benefits} of winning them outweighed the consequences of losing them. After the war-making nations utilized their full economic and political potential, wars became cancerous as they ruptured the whole society. When all this happened, suitable measures have been taken by citizens to mitigate the wars. By direct method, citizens refuse to participate in wars ~~and states announced them~~. However, the indirect method proves to be more fruitful that states must join hands to establish peace.

Exploring Cherokee as a Tourist Place

Choosing a tourist site was a difficult task for the author as he wanted a non-crowdy place for spending his vacation. Upon the suggestion of his friend, he finally decided to visit Cherokee. They visited Qualla Boundary famous for its historical sites. They visited souvenir shops containing military equipment. The shopkeeper was fluent in English and he invited them for lunch. He told them that earlier he was a wood-cutter. This made them realize that apart from trade activities, Cherokees also possess other professions for earning in tour off-peak days. The Bingo weekend is a good source of income as different games attract the tourists. Lastly, they visited a museum where ancient cosmic items were displayed. The trip was memorable for the author and he wished for visiting another exotic place.

Q2) Write a precis and suggest a suitable title?

The suitable title for the given passage is:

Laziness — Better than Utilizing Misguided Energies

It is not the laziness, but the misguided energies which are responsible for the emergence of evils. These evils have brought the world in a state of chaos. For example, devil never wastes his time, but uses his energies in a negative way. Also, if political elites prefer wasting their time in enjoying wealth than utilizing their energies in a misdirected way, it might produce more fruitful results. Therefore, laziness is not a crime. So, clergy should also prefer wasting time if they hold conferences for aggravating petty issues instead of focusing on evils which ruin the civilizations.

Q2) Write a precis and suggest suitable title?

The suitable title for the given passage is:

Human Activities Shaped by Climatic Variations

Human nature varies according to the different climatic conditions - cold, moderate and hot. In temperate regions, the cold environment is considered a hurdle which gives humans a spur to fulfill their needs.

If the climatic hurdle seems too big, it might cause frustration eventually leading towards no effort. However, the moderate cold generates the spirit of facing hurdles which enables people to fulfill their needs.

On the other hand, if climatic hurdle seems too small, humans will not utilize their energies to full extent and will take their lives easily. Like in the hot environment of tropical regions, the daily needs of people are limited; therefore, they demand very little or no energy.
