

where is the reference of the original para???

Title Man is the sole owner of his property this is a sentence not a title
premis

John Locke reflects that men come together in a society, under the laws, which ensured their protection. It is necessary for their common good. All ^{are} are aware of these laws that are administrated by indifferent judges. Locke said that king can never suspend the law in his absolute monarchy. Finally ~~Locke~~ raised voice that no absolute power can devoid ^{of} a common man of ~~from~~ his property without his consent. People can not be taxed without their consent.