

Changing world order and foreign policy of Pakistan

Outline

1. Introduction

Thesis statement: World order is changing from geostrategic to geoeconomic; thus, most countries are interested in economic development. And Pakistan is also ready to be partner in trade not in war. However, Islamabad must ensure cordial ties with those countries with whom its relations are presently frosty.

2. Correlation between changing world order and foreign policy of Pakistan

3. World order is shifting from geostrategic to geoeconomic

- a) Preference of trade wars to conventional wars
- b) Due to the worst experiences of the past misadventures, The US longing for conflicts seems to be diminishing
- c) Having being affected by wars, Afghan government is preferring nation building to conflict
- d) India has started working with several countries, instead of restricting its relations with a single state
- e) European countries have started working with the foes of the US
- f) A few Arab countries and Israel are getting closer to ensure mutual interests
- g) To become economically strong, KSA has decided to leave its old way of confrontation with Iran

4. How Pakistan is molding its Foreign Policy according to the changing world order

- a) shift in Foreign Policy from geostrategic to geoeconomic
- b) Rejecting the unfair demands of the US
- c) Trying to work with maximum states for economic purposes
- d) Maintaining neutrality in international wars
- e) Endeavoring to enjoy friendly relations with all the Muslim states
- f) Playing role in regional connectivity

5. Recommendations for Pakistan to run its foreign policy

- a) To become economically strong, Pakistan must try to become the part of B3W along with BRI
- b) To reduce the dollar outflux from the country, Pakistan must try to trade with India

- c) To take economic benefits from the resources of Afghanistan, Pakistan should continue its efforts of maintaining good ties with the running administration of Taliban
- d) Pakistan must endeavor to maintain its relations friendly with all the countries, so that it can compete with the rest of the world

6. Conclusion