

CSS-2002

Title : Language turned a man into a human being

Homo Sapien is the scientific name of man but also called as Homo Faber by many anthropologists. Man is able to talk that is why he is Homo Sapien and Homo Faber. Without language man would be like an animal. It was language that turned man into a social being. Through language man evolved and became capable of gathering and transferring information. Language made man able to make laws related to its religious and social life. (71 words)