Indent the paragraph.

The most unfortunate thing in human nature is envy that makes a person unhappy. An envious person does not enjoy his blessings he has and always feels unhappy about things others have. He wants to deprive others and always want those advantages for him.

The Author asks various questions that why someone suffers and at the same time others enjoys. Envy cannot justify it. Humans want to be admired. It gives them happiness and help to destroy envious feelings. Saints cure envy by selflessness. However an ordinary person can fight envy by happiness but envy itself is an obstacle for happiness. Envious person does not consider it a good cure because they believe that one cannot be happy with envious feelings and hence to destroy them to get happiness. However, the only realizing causes of envy is a great step to learn get rid of it.

Idwa is generally ok. However, grammar is poor. Revise present indefinite tense because subject verb disagreement found. Try to use your own vocabulary as much as possible.
