

Precis

- Precis 2005 => Points :
- ① Psychoses, neuroses balance disturbance, one sided ego.
 - ② In psychoses no ego goals unacceptable to him and society
 - ③ Strong psychotic type - Animal-like behaviour
 - ④ In less severe emotional sickness one of 4 mental functions dominant. ego one sided just like neurotic behaviour
 - ⑤ Both alienation from true goal
 - ⑥ Neurosis behaviour interpreted from culture
 - ⑦ Deviation from culture is not a point but from inviolable polarity

Indent the paragraph.

Precis

Neuroses

Psychoses and neuroses are two emotional disorders. In these ego becomes one-sided. Psychoses is the emotional disorder in which a person has no ego and he only works for the goals which are not appropriate for himself and his society. In the strong psychotic type a person behaves like the beasts. Anyhow, at a less severe emotional sickness, one out of the four mental functions becomes dominant.

The person loses the balance in his ^{behaviour} behavior. It is more like a neurotic behaviour.

Neuroses can be interpreted from the culture, but the point is that it is not the issue of a society. It is about the balance of behaviour in an individual.

Title: Emotional disorder and its types

Idea and structure are generally ok. Cohesion also ok.

Avoid cutting.

