

Samina Ali

Batch # 50

June 8, 2023

Gender disparity in houseworks.

Today, as the world has shifted to open-mindedness about gender roles in terms of sports, politics, and employment. There is still one area where change has been minimal - "who will do what at home." Men still hold the traditional view of about women as solely responsible for housework such as cooking, child care, elderly care, etc. A considerable number of women have to leave their jobs after marriage because they are weighed down by the burden and could not balance their ~~to~~ family life and work life. Globally, women perform approximately three-quarter of non paid work care.

Similarly, in South Asia, women perform unpaid care-work nine times more than an average man. Thus, gender disparity in house works is huge. ^{^ (Mirrah Butt, dawn, June 2023)}

(120 words)

Gender bias in Education.

Women's education is a fundamental right of every female, but there is strikingly a rising gender gap concerning education and ^{this gender-gap} has transformed into one of the defining struggles that women face. There are many reasons for it; some of them are poverty, discrimination, childhood marriage, violence in school, and cultural facts. Many girls, who are enrolled in schools initially struggle to get education but end up dropping out for one reason or another. ^{Including} Because of the dropout rate, ~~to~~ female literacy rate in Pakistan is ~~46.49%~~^{46.49%} where as male literacy rate is 70%. Hence, women suffer in educational field be due to gender bias.

(Aaron Neil, statista.com, Jan 2023)

(100 words)