

Title:- Man is born free, but everywhere he is in chain.

Outline:-

1 Introduction

Thesis statement; Man is born free, but everywhere he is in chain. Because he has to follow the religious instruction, his parents fulfill his parents will and bound to earn for his family.

2 (A) Man is born free, but he is taught to recognize the constitution of his country.

(B) He is advised to be loyal to the country.

3 Man is born free, but he is like a slave in society.

4 Man is born free, but he has to earn for his family.

a He is bound to bear his educational expenditures of his children.

b man is responsible for providing a skillful and an educated child to the nation.

c Conclusion

"Essay"

Man is born free, but everywhere he is in chains.
Because he has to follow the religious instructions, fulfill his parents's will, as well as to earn for his family.
Though man is born free, but he is taught to recognize the constitution for his country. He is advised to be loyal to the country.
In addition man is born force, but he is like a slave in society. More over he has to ~~born~~ earn for his family. he is bound to bear the educational expenditures of his children, as well as he is responsible for providing a skillful and ~~and~~ educated child to the nation. Therefore it is rightly said by Rousseau man is born free, but he is everywhere in chain.

Living in a state or country, it is always taught and advised to abide by the rule of law, which means compromising on the freedom of man. Man is born free, but he is compelled to follow the constitution of his country. As following the constitution of country is a hurdle in the way of his freedom, because he did not act according to his will. For example if he drives a car according to his will and cross the speed limits, he would be challenged by the traffic police. Further if a man drives without a ~~test~~ license, he also will be punished for the same reason. So it means man has to follow the rules of his state, which are hurdles in the way of his freedom.

Moreover man is born free but he is like a slave in society. Because he has to adopt himself according to the society. He is bound to follow many customs and traditions that he never want. For example he want to marry in a simple way but society urges and ~~is~~ insists to arrange night parties and conduct a musical programme. Further if a student want to be a teacher, but his parents insist him to be a doctor, it means man is never free. There are many chains in his life.

To add, man is born free, but he is bound to earn for his family. he has to bear the school, college and university expenditures of his children. All these are difficulties in his way of freedom. For example, if he wishes to buy something for himself, but he can't, why? because he is responsible for giving education to his children, and spending money for their educational objectives. The man is also responsible for bringing skillful and intelligent children to the nation, if means his freedom of thought is disturbed, he won't think about himself. he is always test his mind for the success of his children.

Therefore one can say man is born free, but he has to earn and think for his family.

To conclude one may say that, man is born free, but he is bound in society because of adopting many social, cultural, religious and constitutional instructions and rules. So it is a need of the time with following the above mentioned bondage, man must think and work for his personal life. He should enjoy the phenomena of nature, along making his children life good, he has to not to forget the happiness and wonders of life. Every man should work for his freedom and must take strong decisions, now to encounter the hardships of life to spend a better and prosperous life in the society.