

Test: 02

Date: 05-06-2023

Reading Comprehension.

Ans: Children and human both have the same psychological feelings of fear. But the difference is that; children are made afraid of darkness, they are told the stories of ghosts and thieves, and these fancies increase horror in their nature. Whereas, human on their hand are similarly made afraid of death, the painful suffering of death. So the human and children have the feelings of fear respectively.

Q: 2

Ans: If a human just think of that end of life is reward of his own sins in the world and his belief is that he leaves the world and enters into another world that is forever for him. However if a human thinks of death as the Law of nature and his belief in the Law and Superstition may be folly of his own religious meditations, therefore death for a religious man is rid of the worldly life and external life in hereafter.

Q: 3

Ans: The painful experiences of life which are described by monks in their written books, they have suffered a lot like physical torture in the form of self purification the fear for death, a religious person's life can be influenced by the life of monks experiences which they have faced in the form of sacrifices.

Q: 4

Ans: Seneca, the great philosopher his views regarding to death is the circumstance and ceremonies of death are the most frightened situations than a real death of a person, because when a person died, on his death many rituals are performed; weeping of friends, mourning of relatives and wearing of mourning clothes makes more frightened than the death or dead body of a person.

Date: _____

Q: 5

Ans: The death have many facts through its rituals ceremonies like like convulsion of body, bloodless and pale and death rituals like weeping of friends, wearing mourning clothes by relatives and his family which creates more horror than other hand.