

U.S.-China rivalry and Europe

~~The U.S.-China relations is growing~~

The U.S.-China rivalry relations is growing in international politics. Since, a decade Europe is blindly following the United States. In current scenario, the Europe wants its own course. The French President, gave a series of interview, in which he revealed that now Europe wants independency from United States. Moreover, Europe has cleared its stance on Taiwan question. Europe wants strategic independency. Europe does not want to become a part of "Bloc versus Bloc logic" and having no interest in Taiwan. Europe is getting closer to China regarding economic ties and making its foreign policy independent which is unacceptable for both party in U.S. Moreover, Europe has different view about Beijing policies, its security concerns and economic ties. Consequently, European has divided on this view. In 2022, China was the second largest importer of Europe products and this was the time of Russia-Ukraine war. Europe find the dialogue between Europe and China on climate change and reduction of CO<sub>2</sub> emissions. The Europe strategic autonomy is becoming controversial issue in Europe. However, the United States need a strategic partners to pressurize the China.
