The Gift of God in the Form of Parents

Parents play an important role in bringing up of their children. The most obligatory thing is to give them education. Educated mothers teach good traits of personality and make their children civilized. Hence, most successful people give credit of success to their parents. Moreover, educated parents groom their children well. So, children should give respect to their parents and look after them when they grow old. It is utmost duty of children to give them medicine, and to arrange their funeral in case of their demise.
