

BOTH PARENTS SHOULD ASSUME EQUAL RESPONSIBILITY IN RAISING A CHILD

1- INTRODUCTION

2- UNDERSTANDING THE RELATIONSHIP OF CHILDREN WITH THEIR PARENTS

3- WHY BOTH PARENTS SHOULD TAKE EQUAL RESPONSIBILITY IN RAISING CHILDREN

- a) Equal right of child on both parents.
- b) Transfer of combined knowledge and wisdom.
- c) Cumulative social and economic protection of child.
- d) Speedy development of child.

4- HOW CAN CHILD RESPONSIBILITY BE EQUALLY DIVIDED AMONG BOTH PARENTS

- a) Economic empowerment of mother role.
- b) Emotional empowerment of father role.
- c) Ensuring child welfare via parental collaboration.
- d) Governmental initiative for parental education.
- e) Involvement of both parents in child education.
- f) Involvement of both parents in social protection and economic protection of child.

g) Technological connectivity of both parents with children.

h) Promotion of participative family culture in decision-making.

i) Scheduling of parental time for children.

5- CONCLUSION

Ahmad is a child of a middle-class family. His father is burdened due to financial responsibilities and his mother is too involved in her home duties. As a result, Ahmad's education is not at par in his college. Like Ahmad, there are millions of children who have not had equal attention from their parents. Hence, they are left behind in multi-dimensional realms of life. These facts highlight the ~~fact that equal involvements~~ importance of equal responsibility of both parents on their children. Children are very intelligent beings and will ~~catch~~ grasp any information they receive from their five senses. It can be rightfully said that most information is grasped by children from their mode of communication with their parents. Therefore, it is pertinent that both parents share equal responsibility in raising their children. Fundamentally, a child has equal rights on both parents. This ensures speedy development of the child. Furthermore, when both parents are involved in the development of their children, they can transfer their combined knowledge and wisdom to the child, and ~~ensure~~ provide social and economic protection. Given its benefits, equal parental responsibilities can be ensured by taking pro-active measures. Economic empowerment of mother and emotional empowerment of father are steps in the right direction. That being said, ~~get~~ governmental initiatives for parental education will also help ~~the~~ in achieving the cause. Furthermore, involvement of both parents in social and economic protection of child, and education is also necessary for a child's development... Connectivity via technology, scheduling of ~~parental~~ parental times, and promotion of participative family culture are also steps in the right direction. The above discussion enforces the fact that the development of a child is dependent upon the efforts of their parents and that both parents must share equal responsibility in raising children.