

Question No: 3

Question No. 1

The author characterize the concept of civil society as all those places where people come together on the basis of shared interest and contribute to society as effective citizen. Thus, a civil society is a place where people gather and have conversations of multiple things and influence public opinion and policy. As a member of civil society they discuss matters like politics, racial issues, community events, relationships, work and family while sitting on a park, street or in a shop.

Question No: 2

A civil society strives towards better socialization driven by tolerance in a sense that they learn to appreciate and tolerate social differences. They try to develop focus on common interest like gaming in which they learn to tolerate and tend to appreciate social difference in order to built increasingly multicultural nation that can only have by a valuable skill like tolerance.

Question No: 2

The term 'social capital' used in this passage refers to developing a general sense of social trust and mutual obligation in order to make the society work efficiently. The term 'social capital' also used by social scientists, its importance for efficient society.

Question No: 4

A civil society assume the role of a public stake holder in a sense that while gathering together in any association they consider their shared private interest as collective interest and expect the same and influence public opinion and public policy.

Question No: 5

The impacts that feared by weakening state of civil society is that the political institutions will not function efficiently which resulted in less trust and less social connection and state face the pressure.