

Solution past paper 2000

Q#1 Precis:

Title: The changing ^{conditions} ~~life~~ of middle class.

According to the Besant, The middle class of 19th century did not belong to society. Except the armed forces, the society would accept the people who were born in the society or with family connections. As, middle class knew ~~his~~ its own place ~~and~~, it made its own society within a society and was very protective about it. Since then, the life of the middle class had changed a lot but their well-developed consciousness helped them to feel deeply and sympathized with the lower classes. Even though they ~~were~~ had their own connections, there were some universally recognized connections.

Title: The changing conditions of middle class.