

Q1-

How Russia attacked on Ukraine? Is it resurgence of Russia?

Ans 1-

Introduction

Before 1991, Ukraine was a part of Russia, USSR. It was the most powerful state; but in 1991, it broke into 15 states. It was all about rivalry between two super powers; (USA and USSR). Hence, due to this rivalry, Russia wanted its influence over Ukraine or wanted to stop Ukraine from becoming part of the western defence pact, NATO. This all as a result gave birth to new Russia, known as resurgence of Russia.

Russia - Ukraine ~ Background

Originally demographic scenario in Ukraine is Russian-population. But, now influence of western world is increased on Ukraine. Almost 70pc of population is pro-Europe, especially in Western, South-western and central Ukraine - Only 30pc of population is pro-Russian in eastern and south-eastern Ukraine. Hence, there is shift of demographic scenario from pro-Russian to pro-Europe.

3- Why did Russia attack on Ukraine?

The main reasons of attack of Russia on Ukraine are as follows =

a) Westward mobility of Ukraine

As pro-Europe population, Ukraine wanted to become part of NATO alliance. Ukraine applied for NATO and EU membership, wanted to promote trade, people-to-people contact with western world. Not only this, but Ukraine wanted to approach NATO countries, such as USA, UK, France, Spain - for weapons. Moreover, Ukraine also wanted to exercise its defence relations with NATO countries, such as Poland, Baltic sea, and Black sea. All this hurt geo-strategic interest of Russia, hence led a conflict between two neighbouring countries.

NATO influence into Russian sphere of influence

NATO alliance started penetrating into Russian influence after the submerge of USSR. e.g. Eastern Europe, Baltic and Nordic countries were part of USSR that are now under influence of NATO sphere. It does not stop here, but it is ongoing. Another attempt of Georgia to become part of NATO and now Ukraine. This all led a war between Russia and Ukraine and Russia started attacking on Ukraine.

4- How did Russia attack on Ukraine?

Resurgence of Russia

"The end of the history."
said by Fukuyaman. After 1991, USA remained only sole power of the world.
But, in the beginning of twenty-first (21st) century,
entry of Putin - started resurgence of Russia.

Russian attack on Ukraine

and fear in Europe

Russian attack on Ukraine increased fear in Europe. Every country started considering itself under threat of fear i.e
Poland demands its turn now, Finland and Estonia.
This fear led a questions
"Whose turn is now?"
Hence, this gave a birth to resurgence of Russia.

b)

Conclusion

Russian-Ukraine war is a serious concern of global world. Ukraine strive for NATO hunt

geo-strategic importance of Russia and as a result Russia started attack on Ukraine. This attack created fear in Europe
and hence, resurgence
of Russia began.
