

2012
precis

1/1/20

Although population question is of immense importance. It is deliberately ignored due to the vested interests of almost all the stakeholders of the state. This irrational attitude has and will continue to harm the whole society until the population explosion is properly regulated. All the high profile leaders actually do not want to discuss population issue. Therefore, they claim that restricting population is akin to challenging the authority of the nature.

Population Issue and the Role of State's Stakeholders

Comprehension 2012

___/___/2012

(1)

Ans: Humans fear death when he encounters with the stories of a dying man whereas children are afraid of darkness while hearing about the unseen (ghosts) and thieves.

(2)

The sacred view of death in religion regards it as an ingress to another world which views it as a punishment for committed sins.

(3)

Ans: Monks in his books have described the painful experience of death. They further elaborated that a dying man went through the inflicting physical anguish for the sake of salvation.

(4)

Ans:

Seneca highlights the views about death that experiences and rituals of a dying man affords people more about death

(5)

These are multiple facts that make death more horrible. First, a dying man is unable to breathe. His body rests and multilate

~~while with uttering groans~~ ~~while uttering groans~~ shed tears and moan over the clothes of dying man. All these rituals and inflicting pains make death more horrible.