

Role of Language in Civilization

→ Anthropologists were not unanimous in calling human beings homo sapiens or faber - the smith. In the new definition they said human beings are faber and sapiens because they have language for speaking and understanding ~~information~~ knowledge. Through it they became more civilized in the society by following artificial laws. Without language humans are similar to animals or yahoos of Gulliver's.